Twenty-Seventh Week in Ordinary Time

Each week, when we go to Mass, we recite the Creed, a summary of our faith handed down to us from the early church. What they believed, is what we believe, it is an essential part of who we are, we must keep it alive and active. The faith that came to the early Christians was not written on paper, it existed in human hearts, and so, through many hundreds of years of study, discussion and prayer, the Creed we recite today was composed and accepted by the whole church at the Council of Nicaea in 325 ad.

From time to time the people of Israel were subjected to terrible hardships, mass deportations and violence. Habakkuk writes about the time of the Babylonian exile but in essence his cry for help from God echoes through the centuries even down to today; for there are many people who suffer still for their faith in God. Habakkuk looks for God to intervene against the oppression and injustice which is affecting his people but sees no response from Him. The vision he receives calls on the people to persevere in their faith; God's response seems slow in human terms, but it does come. and the exiles do return to the promised land. We are a people of hope, our faith in God carries us through all the trials that come to us in this life for we know that God always cares for those who keep faith in Him.

The gift of Faith is present in all human hearts but, as Saint Paul tells us today "the gift" "must be fanned into a flame". Paul speaks of the gifts of faith; "power, love and self-control". These are the gifts we need to use to overcome the situations that confront us. We should never be ashamed of our faith, hardships will come, but we can triumph over them because we have the Lord on our side. Faith is "something precious" and it is our duty to pass on this faith to others, especially our children.

A mustard seed is possibly the smallest seed in the world. Jesus tells his companions that the power of faith is so great that even if it were the size of the smallest seed it would move mountains. Next time you are faced with a difficult situation take your small seed of faith in your hands and act through the Holy Spirit which is within you.

Twenty-Eighth Week in Ordinary Time

Faithfulness, faith and trust. These most invisible and difficult things are what God asks of us - just as we, in our own way, ask them of those who love us. "Trust me", we say, "all will be well." And if someone does trust us, the reward is simply that trust was well-placed. We have done our duty. Sometimes when we talk about "faith" we put the emphasis on "believe and accept". Today's readings (especially the passage from Habakkuk) invite us to think in terms of "trust". The request of the Apostles is interesting: "Increase our faith" could also mean "Make it easier for us," or "Prove that you are who you say you are." Jesus replies that he can't do that - you can't make someone trust you. It has to be a gift, freely given.
