The Second Sunday of Lent

There is always something special about a gift. It flows from the heart of the giver to the one who receives it. Gifts are special blessings. Today's readings remind us of the importance of gifts in our lives.

Abraham and Sarah received a special gift from God, although they were old, they received the gift of a son, Isaac. But now God tests Abraham's faith, he asks him to sacrifice his only son. Abraham had a tremendous faith in God and did as he was asked. He took Isaac to the mountain to sacrifice him and God, seeing his faith, rescinded his command and the child lived. In return Abraham receives a promise, his descendants will be as many as the stars of heaven, he will be known as our father in faith.

Paul speaks to the Romans, and, in our day, he speaks to us. His words are filled with reassurance "With God on our side who can be against us". God the Father, in his love for us, has sacrificed His only son so that our sins can be forgiven for "nothing can separate us from the love of God". We receive a tremendous gift from God for now His son, through His death and resurrection, has become our advocate in heaven standing "at God's right hand he stands and pleads for us."

Peter, James, and John receive a gift on behalf of the whole human family when they journey with Jesus to Mount Tabor. On that mountain they are given a glimpse of heaven. We cannot know what heaven is like no matter how we speculate upon it. What we do know is that, in heaven, we will be held in the loving arms of God for eternity. Moses and Elijah, appear on the mountain, for Mark they symbolise the whole of the Law and the Prophets, he draws a direct line from the old covenant to the new, made manifest in Jesus the Christ. The transformation of Jesus is followed by the voice of God calling on us to "listen to Him". The Apostles struggle to understand what is happening to them, they are witnesses, but they cannot speak. Jesus assures them that all will be revealed when the Son of Man rises from the dead. Let us pray that, through the blessings of Lent and Easter, we too will experience a transformation through the Gift of love expressed in the death and resurrection of Our Lord.
