Kidney beans

Chickpeas

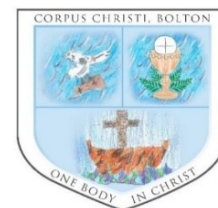

Long-life orange/apple juice

Tuna in oil

Sardines in oil

Pasta/spaghetti-dried

The pick a date fundraiser which was very successful last year will be continued again this year. Over the next few weeks, we will be present after Mass on Sunday in both churches to give people the opportunity to participate and hopefully win some prize money. All the monies raised are used to support individuals and families in need.

Lent is fast approaching, it is early this year, and our thoughts may be turning to how we are going to mark this Lenten season. When we were children, we were often told to give up something, usually something we liked. Times change and now the current idea is not to give up but to take up during Lent. Today's first reading is very relevant to this idea especially when we look to help those less fortunate than ourselves. Isaiah speaks of a vision that establishes a people who are aware of the world in which they live and how they can serve God through serving others. It is an extension of the thought behind the Beatitudes which we listened to in last week's Gospel. It is a list of practical actions which will benefit those without wealth or power and leads us closer to our loving father. We have the Father's promise "Then you shall call and the Lord will answer; you shall cry, and He will say, "Here I am". Read this passage carefully for it can lead you to a new approach as to what you can do to help people during Lent and perhaps for the years to come.

Paul speaks to us of his fears as he journeyed among the nations and spoke of the crucified Christ. He did not come as a powerful orator but as one who wanted to share his faith and help people to change. His purpose was to bring us to faith through the Spirit and power "so that your faith might not rest in the wisdom of men but in the Power of God"

Salt was an important mineral in the ancient world when preserving food was necessary in the demanding climate that the people lived in. Jesus calls his disciples "You are the salt of the earth" but warns them that salt can lose its effectiveness if it is not used.

He also speaks of a lamp which, if put in a basket becomes useless but raised on a lampstand can provide the light that dispels the darkness. In each of these examples he is reminding the people of the words of Isaiah for unless we act as God wants us to and use our gifts to help those in need then we are in danger of becoming worthless salt "no longer good for anything except to be thrown out and trampled under people's feet"
